

my job dictates working late at night. I have had people two times sneak up on me with obvious bad intentions, because I held a window washing pole out towards them. they could see I wasn't going to be easily taken advantage of, and left. if I hadn't had a tool to discourage them. I would have been a victim of who knows how bad. without some sort of tool to be able to discourage an attacker there will be more victims of crime. why would you take the ability to defend yourself away? thank you
