I lived in San Jose for many years and rode my motorcycle to and from work. I never had an issue with lane splitting except for a few who didn't think it was legal. But the main thing was my commute time was cut in half or more and I always felt I was the one in control not the car behind me where the driver was playing with his phone, reading a book or something else other than paying attention. This bill could make it much safer for motorcycle riders especially in the Portland area where the traffic is as bad if not worse than the Bay Area.
