

Having found the practice of lane sharing legal in every state I've previously lived in, I was amazed to find that Oregon forbids it, given that Portland has some of the worst traffic I've experienced anywhere in the country.