

Oregon Forest resources institute funds important research and programs throughout oregon that befit people from all walks of life. This organization supports important education programs for children of any socioeconomic status. Without these programs a lot of children would never understand our forests in oregon. This is fully funded by timber taxes so disbanding this organization will not increase revenue in other departments. Particularly with increasing hot summers, fire and climate change research about our natural world and forests is vital for our earths survival. I oppose this bill.
