ISSUES DISCUSSED:

EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

-1 Makes Office of Emergency Management convener of committee to develop voluntary guidelines.

BACKGROUND:

Media access to natural disasters or wildfires varies in western states. States and federal agencies have different requirements or guidelines for allowing or excluding media access. Agencies may allow access for print and broadcast reporters; freelance print reporters; freelance videographers; and photographers under certain circumstances or only with an official escort.

California has the most explicit law about media access. Its statute (Cal. Penal Code Section 409.5) allows law enforcement or certain public officials to close areas because of disasters such as storms, fires, and earthquakes, but exempts a “duly authorized representative of any news service, newspaper, or radio or television station or network” from such closures.

House Bill 4087 requires officials of public bodies to grant news media representatives access to scenes of wildfires or natural disasters on public lands that are otherwise closed to the public, sets conditions for allowing or limiting access, and requires development of training and other guidelines by September 1, 2022.
