BACKGROUND:

Health insurance companies often contract with certain hospitals, doctors, pharmacies, and other health care providers to deliver medical services for an agreed-upon rate, making up the insurer's network. Services received by providers not in the insurer's network often have higher beneficiary cost-sharing when covered by the insurer.

House Bill 4134 requires insurers to reimburse out-of-network labor and delivery services if they were provided out-of-network solely due to the diversion of the patient for a reason related to a public health emergency declaration.
