BACKGROUND:

Federal law establishes a requirement that states assess students annually in grades three through eight and once in high school in both mathematics and English language arts, and that states assess students periodically in science and social studies. In addition, local districts and individual teachers give their own assessments in order to determine students' academic progress throughout the year. House Bill 4124 requires the Oregon Department of Education to survey districts, establish best practices related to district-level assessments, and make recommendations regarding the use of assessments.

Legislative committees have received complaints that educational records are not transferred among educational institutions in a timely or effective manner. House Bill 4124 requires the timely transfer of complete educational records in certain circumstances.
