BACKGROUND:

The Oregon Department of Revenue administers the homestead property tax deferral program for seniors and disabled citizens. The program is intended to help keep vulnerable populations stably housed. Within the senior and disabled citizens property tax deferral program, the Department of Revenue pays property taxes to schools and local governments on behalf of its participants, via a dedicated fund, while the lien that accrues functions as a reverse mortgage on the property. Interest is a simple six percent. Eligibility requires that applicants must be 62 years and up or eligible to receive Social Security disability benefits, have owned and lived in their home for the past five years or downsized from property in the program, have a net worth less than $500,000, not including the home in question, have household income below $46,500. In addition, their home must be below county-determined value, and they may not have a reverse mortgage, except in some circumstances. Eligibility is reviewed every two years.
