Measure: HB4066

Some Americans make a choice to serve their country. Sometimes the person personally pays dearly for that choice when they are physically or emotionally injured in so doing. The personal cost can be very high to them and their loved ones. While they may never be made whole again, the least we can do is to help release them from the burdens of trying to have a meaningful life from the injuries they received in the service of their country. I support this bill, which in part forgives property taxes for disabled veterans.
