I live on a gravel road, along with several other homes on this road. We all go an easy pace when driving on the road so as not to kick up the gravel and keep it in good shape.

Lately, a bunch of big lifted 4-wheel drive trucks have been driving down our road and pushing rocks into our yards. We've been cleaning that up, not a big deal at first. Now, more recently, apparently the word has spread that this gravel road is a great place to take a monster truck and do spin outs and drifts, throwing the gravel into our yards and now even onto our front porches. One of our neighbors even had a window broken by the flying rocks. I don't even let my kids play in the front yard anymore.

We called the police, but they are too busy. We've tried to ask the truckers to take it somewhere else, but they say it's a "free country".

You get the idea.
