PROGRAM VS SYSTEM

The Oregon Longitudinal Data Collaborative (OLDC) is a cross-agency governed program located in the Higher Education Coordinating Commission. The program conducts cross-sector research examining the impact of education programs, policies, and investments to help individuals and communities in Oregon thrive.

The Statewide Longitudinal Data System (SLDS) is the data system that matches administrative data collected by state agencies in order to provide cross-sector, longitudinal data that can be used in research and reporting.

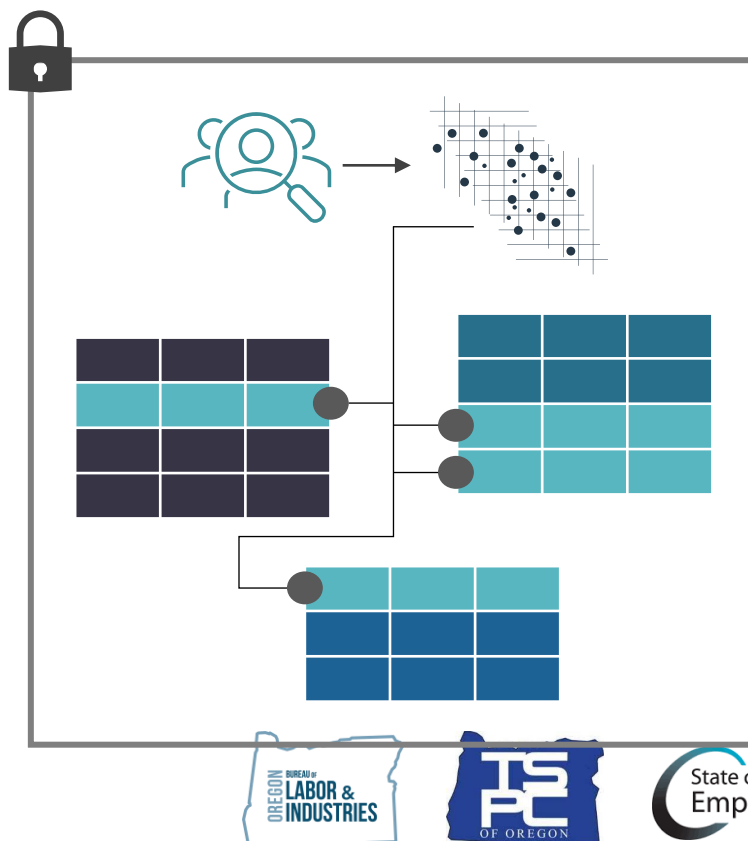

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The goal of the OLDC is to provide actionable data-supported policy recommendations that impact student learning, training, and workforce opportunities

Data partner agencies share data with the OLDC

OLDC applies matching logic across data partner records

OLDC produces files, reports, and publishes research*

Recently published research on the nursing education shortage

A public facing dashboard looking at Educators from program enrollment, through graduation, licensure and employment in the public school system which will be disaggregated by race/ethnicity, gender and geographic region.

WHAT'S NEXT

In Process

Educator Supply and Demand Study

Using national and SLDS data, this study will investigate where potential issues are in the pipeline that may keep people from teaching in Oregon.

Key Components of the Study:

- Assess the supply of graduates to the employment demand of educators, including a national comparison
- Assess educator salary from initial hire through advancement, including a national comparison and state cost of living adjustment
- Regional look at Oregon educator salaries with regional cost of living adjustment

Estimated publish date: March/April 2024
