

This measure has been a disaster. While the intent was admirable, the system to support the lofty goals has never been in place and hence a messy disaster has ensued. The results have been similar in other countries so we need not spend local taxpayer funds for trips to see other failed attempts.

I'm ashamed of the City I once loved. I'm ashamed to see open drug dealing, ashamed our police lack our support to do their jobs, ashamed we let shoplifting and theft become OK in the eyes of the law. Ashamed and appalled over the total lack of mental health resources available. Ashamed that the City's answer is to enlarge the bureaucracy to the point there will be little agreement on anything. Passing of this measure has played into our current situation at every level. Accountability for the outcomes is only achieved by admitting the measure's failure and repealing it now.

Christie Little