

I totally support the concept of tolling. Every state that has adopted tolling has experienced lots of resistance, so this is normal....but it's the only practical solution! After it goes into effect, the hostility dies down and drivers become accustomed to it. This takes strong leadership to overcome the opposition and to make it happen. Randy Miller, Portland