

Measure 110 has been an unmitigated disaster. Decriminalizing lethal drugs has resulted in or exacerbated crime, homelessness, societal decay and mortality. Heroin addiction (unless the user is wealthy) prompts criminal behavior because addicts are unemployable, But need money. Meth literally makes people insane and also unemployable. Fentanyl if it doesn't kill the user, which it often does, leaves them unemployable. People on drugs, without jobs become homeless. How could it ever have been a good idea to legalize hard drugs? Measure 110 unleashed a Pandora's box of societal evils and must be repealed.

Bob Marshall

Sent from my iPhone