

I would like to add to my previous comment that I am a 73-yr old biking woman that would like to feel safer getting about in Portland's streets. I am also a grandmother who would like to see her grandkids be able to safely walk/bike to their schools. I would also like to point out the anti-climate change aspects of building more and bigger freeways. Money diverted for affordable housing and adding tree cover to help out in our climate extremes are more pressing needs to be addressed.
