The data is for accepted disabling, denied disabling, and denied nondisabling workers' compensation claims. The data does not include accepted claims to the Oregon Workers' Compensation Division (WCD).

In Oregon, a disabling claim occurs when an injury causes the worker temporary disability (time-loss), the worker has or is expected to have death. Generally, a worker must miss three or more days from work to receive temporary disability. A nondisabling claim occurs when the worker is entitled to temporary disability and they do not have a reasonable expectation of permanent impairment.

Workers' compensation insurers have 60 days to determine whether to accept or deny a claim. Insurers have an additional 14 days after accepted claims to the WCD. This results in a lag time in reported data.

Workers have 60 days to appeal denied claims to the Oregon Workers' Compensation Board. If the denial is overturned on appeal, the claim is treated as an accepted claim.

Firefighters are those claims having a Standard Occupational Code (SOC) of 331021, 332011, 332021 or 332022.

The date used for classifying is the date the 801 form was received by DCBS.

Data for 2023 and 2024 are tentative and subject to change.

Data for 2024 is year to date.
