

Interstates are not the solution. Electric cars are not the solution. Automation is not the solution. Electric trains are nearly 170 year old. The technology is not new. We can build them. None of this hydrogen or battery electric shit. If we want a livable planet everyone is gonna have to learn to appreciate the fact we already know what to do but we are pretending like we need to find a solution. We have it and have for nearly 200 years.

Kyle Chesney