BACKGROUND:

The Teacher Standards and Practices Commission was established in 1965. Prior to that time, the State Board of Education oversaw licensing of teachers and Oregon had a separate commission on teacher tenure. Originally, TSPC was responsible for conducting a study and making recommendations to the State Board, and was staffed by the Oregon Department of Education (ODE). Changes to the law in 1973 allowed TSPC to hire its own staff, including an executive secretary. In 1997, the law changed again, allowing TSPC to hire an executive director. TSPC consists of a 17-member commission supported by 31 FTE staff. The agency is responsible for issuing licenses, approving educator preparation programs, approving nontraditional pathways to licensure, approving professional development for license renewals, and investigating misconduct. TSPC is wholly fee-funded and receives no general fund.

In 2017, the legislature enacted Senate Bill 182, establishing the Educator Advancement Council (EAC) under an intergovernmental agreement. The intergovernmental agreement was executed on March 20, 2018. Parties to the agreement were the Chief Education Office, Oregon Department of Education, Early Learning Division, Teacher Standards and Practices Commission, High Desert Education Service District, and Beaverton School District. Under the provisions of Senate Bill 182, parties to the agreement could appoint members to the Council. A majority of those Council members could then appoint others. Staff support was provided by the Chief Education Office until its sunset in 2019. Since that time, staff support has been provided by ODE.

EAC has an executive director and is responsible for professional development for educators, establishing and maintaining a set of Regional Educator Networks (RENs), conducting a biennial survey of the state's educators, issuing grow-your-own grants, and drafting a biennial educator equity report. EAC is supported by 14.6 FTE staff.

SB 275 -1 STAFF MEASURE SUMMARY

In 2021, House Bill 2166 modified the requirements for EAC's intergovernmental agreement, allowing the Council to appoint a director who could then hire staff. However, EAC was not made a state agency.

Senate Bill 275-1 combines the staffs of TSPC and EAC into the Oregon Department of Education, leaving both appointed bodies intact and independent of the State Board of Education.
