BACKGROUND:

Apprentices learn while earning on the job under the standards approved by the Oregon State Apprenticeship and Training Council (OSATC) and under an apprenticeship agreement that is recognized by OSATC. There are over 60 approved apprenticeship programs available in Oregon, ranging from traditional skilled trades such as plumbers and electricians and newer occupations such as medical assistants and software developers.

In 2021, the Legislative Assembly allocated a total of $6 million for three firefighter apprentice pilot programs. The pilot programs are in the Jackson County Fire District, Clackamas Fire District, and Eugene Springfield Fire Department. In September 2021, OSATC approved a fire fighter apprenticeship standard with the Oregon State Fire Council Joint Apprentice and Training Committee (JATC). Apprentices in the program must complete a total of 4,000 hours of on-the-job training in skills such as structural Fire Fighting, Pre-Fire Planning, and Fire Prevention.

House Bill 2294 allocates $20,000,000 to the Bureau of Labor of Industries (BOLI) to expand firefighter apprenticeship pilot projects in Oregon.
