BACKGROUND:

"quasi-public" entities are publicly chartered bodies that provide a public service and are overseen by an appointed board, commission, or committee. Typically, these entities do not rely on the State's General Fund to operate. One type of quasi-public entity is the semi-independent state agency. House Bill 2976 establishes the Oregon Spirits Board (OSB) to develop and promote the Oregon distilled spirits industry as a semi-independent state agency.

The purpose of the OSB is to promote Oregon's distilled spirits industry nationally and internationally, grow the distilled spirits industry through product distribution and tourism, the development of educational opportunities and materials for industry members, and to create and maintain a long-term strategic plan and use the long-term strategic plan to guide granting and funding decisions. The activities and operations of the OSB are funded by a 50 cents surcharge on each bottle of distilled liquor larger than 50 milliliters, manufactured in Oregon.
