- The effects of laws without discriminatory intent, specifically related to reproductive and gender-related health care
- The government's role in health care decisions
- Abortion and adoption restrictions
- Impacts of discrimination based on sexual and/or gender identity
- Whether schools could restrict women's sports to biological females, or separate bathrooms based on sex, should Senate Joint Resolution 33 be adopted
- The role of constitutional law in determining what rights may be upheld, if SJR 33 is adopted and subsequently challenged in the courts
- The Legislative Assembly writing a ballot title and how it is structured

EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

Replaces the measure.

BACKGROUND:

A referral is a resolution by a governing body to place a question on the ballot for its electors to decide. At the state level, the referral process gives voters the opportunity to decide on Constitutional or statutory changes proposed by the Legislative Assembly. The chief petitioners of a legislative referral are the members of the Legislative Assembly. When the Legislative Assembly refers a measure to voters, it may exercise its authority to write the ballot title and summary, through the passage of a separate legislative measure specifying the ballot title and summary.

A ballot title is a concise and impartial statement summarizing the initiative and its major effect, which is printed on the ballot. A ballot title includes:

- a caption that does not exceed 15 words describing the subject of the petition;
- a statement that does not exceed 25 words describing the result if the petition is passed;
- a statement that does not exceed 25 words describing the result if the petition is rejected; and
- a summary that does not exceed 125 words describing the major effect of the petition.

SB 27 A STAFF MEASURE SUMMARY

Senate Bill 27 MRA provides the ballot title and summary for the proposed constitutional amendment found in Senate Joint Resolution 33, should it be referred to the people by the Eighty-second Legislative Assembly for consideration at a statewide special election to be held on same date as next general election.
