

Submitter: George Lindsay

On Behalf Of:

Committee: Senate Committee On Finance and Revenue

Measure: SJR26

The notion of ceasing the requirement to return surplus revenue to personal income taxpayers in Oregon could potentially raise concerns regarding fairness and equal treatment. The redistribution of surplus revenue has long been regarded as a mechanism to ensure that excess funds are returned to the taxpayers who initially contributed them. Altering this requirement could be seen as an infringement on the principle of equitable distribution and may raise questions about the constitutionality of the proposed amendment.