Our two boys go to Lewis and Clark Charter School, which is being forced to move out of its current district. This has been the community they have grown up in, it gives them experiences outdoors and facilitates opportunities for them to support those around them. My young teens are nurturing, and critical thinkers (which becomes crucially important as they age...) largely due to the school they've been raised in. It would be a tremendous loss to the community should Lewis and Clark Montessori School cease to exist.
