Electric micromobility is the future of transportation, I have become absolutely convinced of this. I recently purchased an e-scooter myself and use that for most trips in the city on a weekly basis, rather than driving a gasoline-based car. If there were a rebate program for me to get an e-bike, I wouldn't hesitate to purchase one! I think the State of Oregon should be doing everything in its power to encourage more people to use vehicles that are humane and support urban flourishing. Electric cars are cool, but there's just one problem: they're still cars. And it's clear too many cars are on the road, period. We can change that! It's within our power!
