I have been a certified dental assistant for 40 years. I have worked in multiple dental offices. Until recently, I have not worked where an assistant has not had their radiology certificate. In the last five years, there have been three assistants without one. It is a burden on those who are certified to take x-rays or the dentist. Since x-rays are required to see abnormalities, every patient needs them. It's like giving someone a car, but not the license to go with it. It's useless.!
