Committee: Senate Committee On Natural Resources

Measure: SB530

I support significant climate action at all levels. While individual actions are needed and can be a part of our achieving a livable future for all who share this planet, we cannot achieve that livable future without policy and economic and technical support from local, state, and federal government. The situation is urgent. Acting now will provide the greatest impact and benefits, economically, environmentally, and socially.

Let us together imagine a future that is markedly different in how we use energy and other natural resources - - and is also richer and more satisfying in how we relate to each other and the natural systems that support us.

Thank you for your work on this critical issue.
