Located seven degrees north of the equator, lies the flat coral islets that make up the Marshall Islands. Here lives the kindest people with the warmest hearts; where you can find nothing but great hospitality among them. The Marshall Islands is a country where issues highlight the abundance of amputated legs; breakfast composed of underpriced but overly consumed chips, soda, ramen, and canned meat meals. Many Marshallese students come to Oregon to further their education and a key factor in that student's success in college is: food. It's the source of energy to learn things. Therefore, establishing this opportunity would be extremely beneficial for us.
