The Urban Growth Boundry is planning that makes Oregon pleasant to live in with a future we can see, at least for a few years. This action by the Govenor looks to be making headlines on a problem that doesn't really exists. Waving the flag of JOBS and well paying jobs does not fly without producing many unknowns. All the negotiations pitting one community against another produces a winner but it doesn't seem to be Oregon or even the community. Very few of the jobs are ones the local population is educated to preform and even are such that the talent hired often comes from out of the United States.

Land is available presently and can be added in an orderly fashion, This would smack in the face of the many hours and love and compromise that produced the UGB we presently live with and love and hate. It has produced a state that people love and love to move to. Thank You Dean Klaus
