As an engineer have witnessed farming being done right in Oregon. Farming being done in a way that respects the land, humanely cares for the animals and supports its farmers. Allowing a company to come in with this inhumane chicken mill would not be responsible farming. It would also negatively affect our existing farmers. How many more avian flus are we going to have to experience before we realize that we have to start doing things differently. It is also a real environmental concern too. And my heart breaks for the animals that have to endure being in a place like that...
