Measure: SB789

It is important to recognize and support the seed growing industry in Oregon. Without these regulations in place to limit canola production, the brassica seeds and industry would be threatened by the mono cropping agriculture of canola production. As a farmer and consumer of Oregon's beautifully grown produce, I implore you to support this bill. Without the passing of SB 789, the door could open to thousands or tens of thousands of acres of unregulated canola production, which would likely destroy the unique attributes of the Willamette Valley's specialty seed production ability and the industry built up around it.
