Committee: House Committee On Behavioral Health and Health Care

Measure: HB2002

This is a Gross overreach by the government and should not be even considered. A child cannot safely make this type of decision or even begging to understand the consequences of these types of decisions. Parents should continue to have the right to make medical decisions for their dependents. The parent is responsible for the child legally and this should continue to have control over their medical decisions. How about we focus on mental health issues that are grossly underfunded in this state.
