Members of the 82nd Congressional Legislative Assembly's House Judiciary Committee,

I watched the testimony and conduct of those who testified today which included individuals who took an Oath to the Constitution.

What I observed was miscarriage of their responsibility, groundwork for potential and familiar subterfuge, virtue signaling, and hypocrisy. Aside from the use of proven erroneous statistics, ignoring existing laws, and their giving false impressions as to the effectiveness of these 3 House Bills, there was a blatant lack of self awareness.

While there were other examples of position misuse, one legislator's stood out to me. I have heard it used as a theme throughout this money making gun control soundbite product over the years. Each who supported these Bills insinuate it constantly. All the while it's impossible to not grow weary with frustration knowing a more viable path to addressing the issue at hand is ignored or mismanaged.

The example that stood out most was spoken by Senator Manning. He uttered that tired hypocritical theme I've witnessed Kate Brown (and like company) say without any obvious notice to the irony of their words. With the most sincere of expression he said, the 3 Bills are for the " protection of lives," or in Brown's words, "if we can save just one life."

Apparently some politicians can sleep at night after publicly parroting this phrase in the past and today. The names on these Bills are in lockstep year after year. They do this while self applauding the abomination HB 2002 giving 15 year olds and medical "doctors" permission to profit and mutilate children's bodies or end the life of a baby in a GIRL'S womb, WITHOUT THEIR PARENTS BEING NOTIFIED. Parents now being labeled "parental barriers."

The approximate 8000 Oregon lives ended every year by their legislative action, with an increase of customers to come due to passing more legislation which imports out of states holds no irony to these people. Saving a life only counts if it is used in association with their preferences and agenda. Pardon me if I merge my observations of disgust over another recurring Bill theme.

The Oath takers, Manning, Brown and all the rest want to "save just one life" by destroying 2nd Amendment Constitutional Rights and simultaneously delight that they can defend that mob power which can actually risk lives by siphoning more tax money. They fight for the joy of doing it as Senator Prozanski illuminated in his reference as to who gets to carry the Bill in the Senate.

None of these 3 Bills, separated or combined will do what it is professed to accomplish. And no number of boldly labeled, red shirted women knitting and nodding in the background will be more than just a pawn when they are grossly misinformed. When you allow a man like Mike Schmidt to come to the table unchallenged with his behavioral record and sit next to an Attorney General who misrepresents facts with a smile, you do nothing to save one life. If anything, you jeopardize many.

When you allow political agendas that release criminals, embolden criminals, assist and invite and fund the mentally ill to live in tents on the streets with your grossly failing policies, and give non binding "tickets" to drug addicts who laugh and tear them up as they head to their next fix, and neuter our police. I realize now how you can sleep at night.

You take drugs. You must, or I'm living in another dimension called the other Oregon. Not the one I've loved for so many years. Not the one that made sense. It can't be, this is unreal.

The truth could set us free. But you seem impervious.

Sincerely,
Sally Klein
