Measure: HB2005

Any gun law that is not directed at a criminal is in violation of the 2nd Amendment and should not be supported, it will not help the crime rate as a gun is merely a tool used for good or evil according to the intent of the person holding it. Many good people with a gun have stopped criminals and they deserve the right to continue to do that. This bill punishes those who make their own guns. I would be fine with huge fines for those being in the possession of a criminal who has shown disregard of human life and liberty by their behavior, but most people with guns are perfectly fine to have them and should not be hindered from exercising their 2nd amendment rights. If you want to reduce the crime rate, people who strangle, beat, bludgeon, stab are more dangerous according to crime statistics. People running over people in a car are dangerous too, but you are focused unreasonably on the gun, which is a tool just like all the other weapons that can kill.
