Measure: HB2006

HB 2006 is just a way to control gun owners with no basis in the real world. For this to make any sense our nation would have to then raise the age to 21 in order to enter the military, drive a car, go to work, and do what most of us consider responsible actions to becoming a law abiding citizen. If we conclude that a person is unable to make educated decisions prior to the age of 21 then we would need to raise the age of many other activities as well.

The comparison apples to apples should be used when evaluating this bill. For example: If a person is not able to make educated decisions then it doesn't matter if you put them behind the steering wheel of a car, holding a gun, or making life threatening decisions the result will be the same. If their intentions are bad the result will be the same. One must understand society has become increasingly sensitive to guns and topics surrounding them and this is understandable. But the answer is not regulations, the answer is changing a demographic in a positive direction.
