Measure: HB2990

Our culture isn't designed to plan ahead anymore. Every environmental emergency we have now underlines this. Younger generations are being encouraged to rent and renters don't stay put. People don't pack around emergency supplies, if they even accrue them in the first place. We don't know our neighbors anymore. We don't have built in support systems - and that's just for the people who are thriving. Resilience hubs support us all. We need a modern community haven to connect and seek support.
