Measure: HB2005

HB 2006 is unconstitutional and redundant. Unfortunately, our country is being run by a leader that abuses executive powers and had already place an executive order to stop the sales of firearms to people under the age of 21. He has totally gone around the 2nd amendment rights of people under the age of 21. For one thing this makes no sense when we can send people into the military at the age of 18, where using a firearm in their everyday life is standard. You could say they receive training, and this is why they are a lower threat. Then why are we not focusing on training for these individuals under 21 years of age? Where are the statistics that these people under 21 are higher risk? How does this stop someone from stealing a gun or buying it off the street? Criminals have a total disregard for the law. What makes you think this HB 2006 is going to change any of that? This again is a bill that is forcing and taking the rights away from law abiding citizens. You're putting their lives at risk by taking their options to protect themselves and their families. You're taking their rights to hunt and provide for their families. This is just another sneaky way to apply more restrictions on law abiding gun owners. If this is put in place, do you think that the police have the resources to go from town to town, home to home, and remove these firearms or check all these homes for people under 21 for firearms? The only answer is no. No, they don't and if they tried.... well, what are we taking them away from? We would be taking them away from more important duties such as protecting our communities from violent crimes being committed by actual criminals. People in support of this HB 2006 have no idea what the people under the age of 21 have going on in their life. A young single mother or a mother that the husband works a long distance from his family to provide for them has no way of protecting her family with a firearm because why? Someone that supports this bill. It's not right and it's removing rights from law abiding citizens.
