

Submitter: Sally Klein
On Behalf Of: Truth and broken links
Committee: Senate Committee On Judiciary
Measure: SB348

Committee Members and Testimony Submitters,

Two links I sent with my testimony earlier today did not survive a technology scramble on this site. (They worked elsewhere.)

So I'd like to leave a description on how to get to each of those links in the hope that some here may take that extra step to get to them. I'd especially love for those who support this Bill to consider these 2 listening and reading sources. Please.

One link is a 5 minute presentation to Congress and the other an informative book relative to Oregon. Both links content would be my testimony if I were as articulate and given the time. But as is obvious, this blatant reconstituted attack with SB 348 of the already unconstitutional Measure 114 is strategically offered with little time to counter. Floyd Prozanski and his colleagues won't listen or act on this kind of valuable information. A man like Andrew Pollack, Meadow's dad, begs you too. He presents the information from a broken heart turned warrior heart.

The first of my links that didn't make it can quickly be found on Amazon. It leads to the book written by said father who lost his daughter via the Parkland School's policy neglect. Policy that is STILL in many schools across the country today. Likely in the ones you send your children to in any Oregon town.

The name of the book is: Why Meadow Died, by Andrew Pollack. His son's introductory to the book says it all, but the amount of detail within its covers siting the path of neglect, corruption and use of "political correctness" in the long sheltered education system is still pervasive and should wake you up as to the possible vulnerability of your own family.

Count the hours YOU have your school age child and then count the hours THE GOVERNMENT has them and decide for yourself if you should know more than you assume or are told.

Today, schools, administrators, players whose salaries are tied to the public system, and certain politicians, want to blame guns. A father determined to get to the root causes found out otherwise. While I don't agree with every point in this book, that possibility for you should not stop anyone on either side of this issue from learning about what he found. It screams what is wrong. You just need to hear it.

The second broken link is testimony by Amy Swearer from The Heritage Foundation. Go to Youtube and in youtube's search box simply insert the sentence below and her presentation to the Congressional Oversight Committee will come up as the first selection. Five minutes of your time that won't be wasted.

“ The Left REFUSES to listen to the effective solutions to gun violence Amy Swearer to House Oversight”

I'd encourage you to listen to more research under her name. She is articulate, sincere, and thorough in her presentations.

Her points are what we pay politicians to consider but they won't. She includes facts which find themselves buried under the partisan table. Extremism will keep us torn apart. Legislation like this overreaching Bill will only harm and put risk into the lives of honest citizens in Oregon whether you carry a firearm or not. It obfuscates. It diverts. It makes money for campaigns. It does not solve.

Salem's divisive politics and partisan driven politicians are using the hearts and minds of those who have good intentions and perverting them into hidden agenda's that are destructive to our Republic. When half or more of the state is locked out of consideration from reasonable alternatives that wouldn't steal our Constitutional rights it becomes ill gotten mob rule.

History of societal destruction repeating itself. It's dangerous and it grows ever closer.

Sincerely,

Sally Klein