This is absolutely unconstitutional. The whole point of the 2nd Amendment, especially when you look at supporting documents such as letters written, was to ensure the CITIZEN populous was as equivalently armed as the government. Therefore ALL laws restricting firearms in ANY capacity to citizens, not just law abiding citizens, big difference because that would open up loopholes for this nonsense legislation, are totally unconstitutional, because the government has no limitation on weapons they can own and use.

The Right to keep and bear arms was not created with the intent of self defense, and while that is a wonderful byproduct that the 2A protects, it was intended to keep a government from having power over its people that would be the only way to ensure it cannot fall into a tyranny.
