Dear Representative Bobby Levy,

Please give serious thought to revising the Fish and Wildlife Commission. By focusing on equitable geographical representation, we can more effectively address wildlife management needs. The Oregon Water Resources Commission has demonstrated the value of this approach. Leaving the current structure unchanged risks politicizing wildlife management in Oregon. A diverse commission can lead to better outcomes for everyone in Oregon.

Dear Representative Bobby Levy,

By supporting HB3086 and redistricting the Commission seats based on the five river basins in Oregon, we can ensure commissioners are familiar with each area's specific issues. This is a more sensible approach than having commissioners from opposite sides of the state. Reducing politics in wildlife management will make the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife more efficient in managing our resources.

Dear Representative Bobby Levy,

Oregon's expanding population calls for an inclusive approach to wildlife management that addresses the interests of various stakeholders. The eastern regions of the state, which are home to Hispanic communities and Tribal entities, deserve better representation on the Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission. The current setup mainly favors urban populations, disregarding the state's considerable diversity. As the Commission is being revamped, let's support HB3086 and work towards a new paradigm that values representation from all regions.

Dear Representative Bobby Levy,

I respectfully request that you consider making changes to the Fish and Wildlife Commission. Implementing more equitable representation based on geography can positively impact wildlife management. We can look to the Oregon Water Resources Commission as a successful example.

As a 26 year old, I have strong fears that our current wildlife management practices will not maintain sustainable wildlife populations for future generations of Oregonians to experience. In my short lifetime I've watched Mule Deer populations crash and listened to my dad and grandfather tell stories about what Oregon's Mule Deer populations use to be like.

I believe maintaining the current Wildlife Commission structure may result in the politicization of wildlife management in Oregon. Wildlife management should not be political. I think it is incredibly dangerous to our wildlife to stray from the North American Model of Conservation. The North American Model of Conservation has allowed the United States to build and maintain robust populations of wildlife, and I believe straying from it will lead to the same wildlife population declines that other countries have experienced.

A diverse group of commissioners can lead to better management for all Oregonians.

Sincerely,
