Without this bill, there is a very real risk that I could lose a valued colleague. I believe that people absolutely should pay their fair share, and if you make more, you should contribute more. But the current situation creates a threshold at which disabled people are faced with a choice of not working entirely, or rejecting a raise. This is hugely unfair and demeaning and makes it harder for companies to pay disabled people their full worth. This bill would make it so everyone can contribute what they can to their own care in a reasonable and proportional way, whether at lower income levels or higher.
