Committee: Senate Committee On Human Services

Measure: HB3256

I strongly oppose HB 3256. The thought that the State should have the authority to come between the parent-child relationship, especially parents of disabled children is alarming. The government is trying to drive a wedge and rift in one of the most important relationships humans have, parents and their children. The State has no right to keep parents from their children (unless of course in situations of abuse). This bill is unconscionable; please vote no.
