Absolutely not. Living in Portland and seeing the trash these individuals leave is insane. Additionally, they leave fences, needles and attack people. I've seen multiple addicts doing drugs out in the open. This is first hand witness accounts. It's already enough letting these addicts do whatever they want without repercussions. As a resident who just moved to this state, I will move out if you pass this insane idea. This is a terrible idea and this state is going to become the joke of the US if you keep passing laws like this, and that's coming from a liberal... get it together! Clean up the streets and put more care into the residents who actually pay taxes. Get addicts real help and move them off city and residential streets. Repeal 110. That's a better start than this nonsense.
