RE: HB 5030 Lottery Bond Revenues Capital Construction Request

Dear Co Chairs Steiner, Sanchez, and member of the Joint Ways & Means Committee:

I, Brandy Selover, Executive Director of the Sexual Assault Resource Center (SARC) of Oregon am writing in support of the Family Peace Center of Washington County. We are a community collaborative of agencies and providers that are working together to create an innovative single center for the intervention, prevention, and healing of domestic violence, sexual assault, and child abuse.

Funding from the FY23-25 Lottery Bond bill will support the renovation of the new facility that will house many different partners to achieve this goal. We are requesting a $6 million bond allocation.

In 2018, Washington County founded the Family Justice Center – a co-located multi-disciplinary initiative to provide a single location for survivors of domestic and sexual violence. Since opening, the need for our services has grown, and we have been adding new partners and services. In 2020, the need for comprehensive child abuse response and prevention in Washington County became apparent, so we launched an initiative to expand the current Family Justice Center into the Family Peace Center, incorporating CARES Northwest, and creating a comprehensive continuum of services for children.

We also added capacity to provide medical care for survivors of domestic violence, sexual assault, and child abuse.

Since 2020 we have been working hard to realize our vision. In 2021, the Legislature recognized our work and allocated $6.25 million in Lottery Bonds and $400,000 in ARPA funds for the pre-work and purchase of a facility.

We are requesting your support again - $6 million in Lottery Bonds - to renovate and establish a state-of-the art facility where survivors of all ages can receive the comprehensive care they deserve. This model of collaboration and coordination of services across a broad spectrum of disciplines is the research-based best practice for truly breaking and ending the cycles of violence in our communities. The Family Peace Center of Washington County will be the first of its kind in Oregon.

As a person who has been doing primary prevention and response work related to sexual assault and other forms of gender-based violence and oppression for more than two decades, it is rare to experience such a high level of commitment, collaboration, and dedication of systems-based organizations and community-based programs as I have witnessed with this initiative. This is truly an extraordinary project, group of collaborators and servant leaders intently focused on the needs of the community. Having the Family Peace Center would allow confidential sexual assault advocates to co-locate on a fulltime basis at the center and with that, SARC anticipates being able to increase the number of trauma-informed advocacy services to support people impacted by sexual violence in Washington County.

Uniting all agencies in our community will strengthen our response to violence and abuse. Providing a second allocation of Lottery Bond Revenues in the 2023-2025 biennium will ensure we can complete our project and achieve our vision.

SARC strongly encourage your support of $6 million in Lottery Bond funding to support the renovation of the new facility that will become the Family Peace Center to not only to promote the health and safety of children and families today, but the well-being of Washington County for future generations.

Thank you for your consideration,

RE: HB 5030 Lottery Bond Revenues Capital Construction Request

Dear Co Chairs Steiner, Sanchez, and member of the Joint Ways & Means Committee:

I am writing as the District Attorney of Washington County and a board member of the Family Justice Center of Washington County.

The Family Justice Center is a community collaborative of agencies and providers working together to create an innovative single center for the intervention, prevention, and healing of domestic violence, sexual assault, and child abuse.

Funding from the FY23-25 Lottery Bond bill will support the renovation of the new facility that will house many different partners to achieve this goal. We are requesting a $6 million bond allocation.

As a career prosecutor and elected District Attorney, I have seen firsthand the impact that trauma and violence can have on families in our community. I believe that the work of the Family Peace Center will be a form of transformational criminal justice reform that will allow us to address the impact of trauma and build resiliency.

Uniting all agencies in our community will strengthen our response to violence and abuse. Providing a second allocation of Lottery Bond Revenues in the 2023-2025 biennium will ensure we can complete our project and achieve our vision.

I respectfully request your support of $6 million in Lottery Bond funding to support the renovation of the new facility that will become the Family Peace Center to not only to promote the health and safety of children and families today, but the well-being of Washington County for future generations.

RE: HB 5030 Lottery Bond Revenues Capital Construction Request

Dear Co Chairs Steiner, Sanchez, and member of the Joint Ways & Means Committee:

The purpose of my letter is to request your support for a $6 million dollar bond allocation for critical renovation of the Family Peace Center of Washington County. We are a community collaborative of agencies and providers that work together to create an innovative single center for the intervention, prevention, and healing of domestic violence, sexual assault, and child abuse.

Funding from the FY23-25 Lottery Bond bill will support the renovation of the new facility that will house many different partners to achieve this goal. We are requesting a $6 million bond allocation.

The Family Peace Center of Washington County will be the first of its kind in Oregon.

In 2022, our office received an averaged of 8 child abuse reports and 4 domestic violence reports every day. It takes our entire Investigations and Patrol Division staff to thoroughly investigate these allegations in a timely, effective, and compassionate manner. Just as important, we depend on the Family Peace Center and CARES Northwest as a critical partner so victims can break the cycle of violence and abuse, and together we can hold offenders accountable.

Uniting all agencies in our community will strengthen our response to violence and abuse. Providing a second allocation of Lottery Bond Revenues in the 2023-2025 biennium will ensure we can complete our project and achieve our vision.

I and my entire team strongly encourage your support of $6 million in Lottery Bond funding to support the renovation of the new facility that will become the Family Peace Center to not only to promote the health and safety of children and families today, but the well-being of Washington County for future generations.

RE: HB 5030 Lottery Bond Revenues Capital Construction Request

Dear Co-Chairs Steiner, Sanchez, and member of the Joint Ways & Means Committee:

On behalf of CARES Northwest, the children's advocacy center serving Washington County, I write today in support of a $6 million allocation to the Family Peace Center project from the FY23-25 Lottery Bond bill. The Family Peace Center will be an innovative single center for the intervention, prevention, and healing of child abuse, domestic violence, and sexual assault. FY23-25 Lottery Bond dollars will support the renovation of the new facility that will house many different partners to achieve this critical goal.

In 2018, Washington County founded the Family Justice Center – a co-located multi-disciplinary initiative to provide a single location for survivors of domestic and sexual violence. Since that time, the need for services has grown, not only for survivors of domestic and sexual violence, but also for child abuse. For example, just over half of children receiving child abuse evaluation, therapy, and support services from CARES Northwest now come from Washington County; due to limited clinic space in our satellite clinic site in Beaverton, however, most of these children must receive their services in Portland, outside of their home community.

To address this, Washington County leaders and community members launched an initiative in 2020 to transform the current Family Justice Center into the Family Peace Center and, along with other new agencies, add the CARES Northwest child abuse evaluation and support program to its constellation of services.

Since that time, we have been working hard to realize our vision. In 2021, the Legislature recognized the importance of the Family Peace Center project by allocating $6.25 million in Lottery Bonds and $400,000 in ARPA funds for the pre-work and purchase of a facility.

We are requesting your support again - $6 million in Lottery Bonds - to renovate and establish a state-of-the-art facility where survivors of all ages can receive the comprehensive care they deserve. By creating more clinical space for CARES Northwest, more Washington County children experiencing abuse will receive expert medical treatment, forensic evaluation, family support and therapy closer to home and their families will benefit from stronger working relationships with our domestic violence and sexual assault partners at the Family Justice Center. This model of collaboration and coordination of services across a broad spectrum of disciplines is the research-based best practice for truly breaking and ending the cycles of violence in our communities. The Family Peace Center of Washington County will be the first of its kind in Oregon.

Uniting all agencies in our community will strengthen our response to violence and abuse. Providing a second allocation of Lottery Bond Revenues in the 2023-2025 biennium will ensure we can complete our project and achieve our vision.

In closing, our team at CARES Northwest strongly encourages your support of $6 million in Lottery Bond funding for the renovation for the new facility that will become the Family Peace Center, to not only promote the health and safety of children and families today but also to ensure the well-being of Washington County for future generations.

Please feel free to contact me with any questions at (503) 276-9000 or via email at jgilmor@lhs.org. Thank you for your kind consideration.

Co-Chairs and Members of the Committee:

Washington County's Board of Commissioners supports the request from the Family Justice Center of Washington County (FJCWC), an independent, non-profit organization that serves abuse survivors in Washington County, for lottery bond dollars to assist in their purchase and remodel of a building in Washington County for a new, co-located Family Peace Center. This center would be the first of its kind in Oregon and will help FJCWC provide service to our county's vulnerable abuse survivors.

As you know, the Family Justice Center offers victims of abuse the services they need under one roof and provides this support using a single, trauma informed intake process. Washington County has been supporter of the FJCWC since its inception. The County provided funding to assist in the development, construction, and ongoing services provided at its current facilities. Since 2015, the county has invested just over $2 million using general funds, public safety levy dollars, and fundraiser sponsorships. In addition, the County's Community Corrections Department has provided a Family Support Worker housed at the FJCWC and the Washington County Sheriff's Office provides a part-time deputy at FJCWC to assist with service needs.

While the current FJCWC facility can offer wrap-around services to adult domestic abuse and sexual assault survivors, Washington County is reliant on CARES Northwest, located in Northeast Portland, to serve children suffering from abuse and neglect. This is because Washington County does not have a dedicated facility that provides medical evaluations and ongoing treatment for child abuse victims. Domestic violence and child abuse frequently cooccur within a household. So, families that are seeking services have to seek assistance in both facilities.

The CARES Northwest's location in Northeast Portland makes it difficult for many families in our community to make the round-trip. FJCWC is working to build a single facility that will house the services for adults and children, but funding is needed. We know that FJCWC, as a community based organization, will work in partnership with CARES Northwest and its 14 other associated partners to better serve our community through a single facility.

Unfortunately, domestic violence and child abuse are widespread, and the effects of trauma on survivors can be long-lasting and costly. Therefore, Washington County's Board of Commissioners supports the Family Justice Center of Washington County's request for funding to support the creation of the Family Peace Center as they are a vital partner, non-profit that serves our shared community. On behalf of the City of Tigard, I write today in support of the request from the Family Justice Center of Washington County (FJCWC) for Lottery Bond proceeds to purchase and remodel a building in Washington County for a new, co-located Family Peace Center. This Center would be the first of its kind in Oregon and will be developed following national best practices.

Tigard is a partner and strong supporter with the FJCWC. The Family Justice Center offers victims of abuse all the services they need under one roof and access to this support through a single, trauma informed intake process. Each year, we help cover FJCWC operational costs with a $4,500 payment.

While the FJCWC offers wrap-around services to domestic abuse and sexual assault survivors, CARES Northwest, located in Northeast Portland, offers services to support children in Washington County suffering from abuse and neglect. Our community has seen substantial growth, but Washington County does not have a dedicated facility for child abuse victims. Additionally, CARES Northwest's location in Northeast Portland makes it difficult for many families in our community to make the round trip. Building a location within Washington County to house FJCWC and CARES Northwest, as well as other associated partners, will better serve our residents - something the City of Tigard strongly supports.

Unfortunately, domestic violence and child abuse are widespread, and the effects of trauma on survivors can be long lasting and costly. Domestic violence and child abuse also frequently co-occur within a household. It is for these reasons that the City of Tigard requests your support of the FJCWC's request for additional state funds to move forward with the vision to co-locate services for survivors of domestic violence and child abuse into one center – the Washington County Peace Center. The Family Peace Center project will have a significant and lasting impact on our community.

Thank you for your consideration. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Best,

On behalf of the City of Banks, I write today in support of the request from the Family Justice Center of Washington County (FJCWC) for Lottery Bond proceeds to purchase and remodel a building in Washington County for a new, co-located Family Peace Center. This Center would be the first of its kind in Oregon and will be developed following national best practices.

Banks is a partner and strong supporter of the FJCWC. The Family Justice Center offers victims of abuse all of the services they need under one roof and access to this support through a single, trauma informed intake process. Each year, we help cover FJCWC operational costs with a $1,500 payment.

While the FJCWC offers wrap-around services to domestic abuse and sexual assault survivors, CARES Northwest, located in Northeast Portland, offers services to support children in Washington County suffering from abuse and neglect. Our community has seen substantial growth, but Washington County does not have a dedicated facility for child abuse victims.
