Committee: Senate Committee On Education

Measure: SB1583

There should never be any kind of banning of books. Parents and adult individuals should be able to decide which books they want their minor children or themselves to read. If they have objections on what a school dictates as a book to read, then they can make that decision, but to ban books is akin to burning them. Government nor small groups of individuals should have no dictate over what should be considered as free speech, Sheila
