

Submitter: Thomas Busse
On Behalf Of:
Committee: Senate Committee On Judiciary
Measure: SB1553

The Oregon Health Authority is not the agency to study the state's addiction crisis. It already bungled the rollout of Measure 110, and it already operates many addiction programs that are obviously ineffective. Public health "experts" are blinded by ideologies, and government bureaucrats employed by the OHA are not the people to study a crisis that was created on their own watch. In the 1960's, Stanley Milgram proved 80% of human beings are incapable of thinking critically, and this is especially true of "public health" workers.

If the legislature wants to study the addiction crisis, it needs an independent assessment from truly independent consultants and outsiders. The OHA will only rubber-stamp its own failed policies.