I greatly oppose this order. As a whole people are being priced out of being able to afford homes. And now this for many people may mean they can afford the rise in payment a property tax hike with no limits could cause. Not to mention already unaffordable rents will continue to rise because of the expense to the landlord/property owner. The politicians of Portland whose population density dictates the direction Oregon as a whole is heading is disgusting. Property taxes need to remain on a County level with limits. This is no different than placing a cap on the rent increases but for property owners. In fact it would a disservice and injustice to be able to raise property taxes with no cap but keep a cap on the amount rents are raised.
