Committee: Senate Committee On Education
Measure: SB1583

Open books produce open minds and well-informed citizens. The more information available to students on any subject, the more likely they are to understand the various aspects of that subject. Teachers and librarians should always be free to use their own educational experiences, expertise and discretion when choosing instructional materials and books for their students. No outside parties with axes to grind should be allowed to influence those selections. I strongly support SB 1583. Let the teachers and librarians of Oregon do their jobs without having to look over their shoulders.
