RE: SB 1596 Support

Chair Sollman, Vice-Chairs Findley and, Members of the Committee,

My name is Ben Gurewitz, I am a Public Policy Advocate for Disability Rights Oregon. While many stakeholders have raised concerns about the ability to fix phones, DRO wants to highlight the impact right to repair laws have on the livelihoods for people with mobility disabilities.

Power wheelchairs are also subject to many existing rights to repair laws. Wheelchair owners and independent repair shops are prohibited from accessing parts, embedded software, tools and documentation needed to perform diagnostic maintenance, or repair services. Some chairs require a software passcode or a physical key for any repairs. Consumers often spend weeks in a waiting queue to get their wheelchairs fixed. As such, wheelchair users can only go to authorized shops to repair their chair. Repairs are not easily accessible, this means they spend time in bed for weeks while waiting and are unable to attend their daily activities like going to work, the store, or social engagements.

Regulations set by Medicare only replace complex wheelchairs every 5 years. And most commercial health plans have no coverage for preventative maintenance. As a result, more than 1 in 4 wheelchair repairs leave consumers stranded at home for some period of time according to a study published in the journal Archives of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation.¹

DRO has worked with many clients who have gone weeks without being able to repair their chair. SB 1596 will have a dramatic impact on the quality-of-life experience of many disabled consumers. DRO thanks Senator Sollman for bringing forward this important bill and urges the legislature to pass SB 1596 into law.
