

Submitter: John Woods
On Behalf Of: Not being stupid
Committee: Senate Committee On Energy and Environment
Measure: SB1559

Global warming in every direction.....

Well today I woke up to evidence of “global warming” in every direction! We had a brutal summer with high temperatures and now it appears we are headed into a brutal winter, with two snow events already.

Am I the only one who finds these “Climate Change” claims bizarre and manic? They claim hot temperatures, high winds, dry conditions are the results of “Climate Change” in the Summer, then in the Winter heavy rains, snow, low temperatures and high winds are also indicators of “Climate Change”.

It seems that we are headed into a new age of whining, we now hear that “Secret Santa” gift giving produces anxiety in millennials, the sight of a gun has them crapping their diapers and unless we throw billions or trillions of dollars at a theory we as a species will not survive. A vast majority of these so called “experts” live in urban high density rabbit warrens or stacked rat cages, yet they want to tell loggers, truckers and farmers what they can and can’t do. Those are the ones who actually moved out of mom’s basement, the others still reside in the basement with their game console and their weird view of the world. Yet they know somehow the world will end in ten years if the money is not forthcoming! It kind of sounds like environmental extortion on a grand scale. When you have blithering idiots like Alexandria Cortez as a spokeswoman for your cause, it gives the rest of us who did not drink the kool aid a huge reason not to believe in “Climate Change” or Eliminating greenhouse gasses.

Is going to make one bit of difference.

Stop using weather as a convenient excuse to fund your idiocy. Vote No on SB1559