I support rigid campaign finance regulations. I believe that all election campaigns, no matter if they are local, county, state or national, should last no longer than 6 weeks. I also firmly believe that all campaigns should be tax-funded, and that NO outside campaign donations should be allowed. To inform the public, all media notices and coverage should be provided as part of licensing regulations, at cost to the media itself... you know, the way it used to be. Election campaigns are necessarily corrupted by money: the fact that we now value candidates only insofar as they can raise campaign money is an outrage, and a clear indication that money and money alone talks to our government. Want to fix the way governing works? Eliminate the money from campaigns.
